

SHRUBS WITH BERRIES

Looking for a unique feature to add to your garden? Think berries! Berries not only provide an interesting color source, but also provide fruit for birds and other wildlife to snack on. And as berries start as flower you get the best of both worlds. Check out these favorite shrubs with berries to take your garden to the next level!

AUTUMN REVOLUTION™ BITTERSWEET

ZONES 2-8

- Native vine to North America that produces bright orange berries in late summer and fall.
- A self fertile bittersweet, requiring only one plant to produce fruit.
- Perfect to add interest to built structures like fences and to cut and use in DIY crafts.

CANDY™ CORALBERRY

ZONES 4-9

- Covered in candy-pink berries in fall after the pink summer blooms.
- Arching stems support berries throughout the winter and can be used in cut flower arrangements.
- Compact shape is useful for foundation and mass plantings.

AUTUMN INFERNO™ COTONEASTER

ZONES 5-7

- Clean green leaves turn a striking red in autumn.
- Bright red berries form along the stems and add to late season interest.
- Can be pruned to create a formal hedge or left to grow naturally to celebrate the arched shape.
